PETITIONS, REPORTS & COMMUNICATIONSA. Update from the Mayor

Acting Mayor Rhonda Pindell Charles, City Council Remarks
7 p.m. - 26 September 2023

Good evening. I'm acting Mayor Rhonda Pindell Charles. Mayor Buckley and City Manager Mike Mallinoff are away on City business this evening - on a resiliency planning exchange with the County and the Resilience Finance Authority.

I want to begin tonight by talking about the shooting that happened Sunday in Harbour House. One of our City staffers was caught in the crossfire right outside her home. She's at the hospital and getting the care she needs. Thankfully, she is going to be OK.

That City staffer is a professional woman who has worked in the City in various capacities. Her colleagues in the City are all praying for a speedy recovery. To the victim, her family, and coworkers in the City, we know how painful this is. Please use City resources that are there for you to help you process this trauma. The Employee Assistance Program is free and available through our Human Resources Department.

I would like to thank Annapolis Police for their quick response to the shooting - they were in the neighborhood at the time. I would also like to acknowledge the heroic efforts of Annapolis Fire and EMS who applied a tourniquet and got her quickly to the hospital. They saved her life.

I want every resident of Annapolis to know that our Police have good leads on this case. They will find the person responsible and they will be held to account - just as arrests have been made in nearly every contact shooting this year.

But we know from Sunday night's events that police presence and catching criminals is not enough. Shootings and incidents of gun fire continue. It is frightening for neighbors and a vexing problem.

We are working to find solutions. Under Chief Jackson, APD works more closely than ever with federal and regional law enforcement. We share intelligence to track concerning activity - leading to a number of recent drug and weapons seizures.

Unfortunately, easy access to guns and increasing gun violence is not isolated to Annapolis. It is a problem across America. Gun violence in our nation has increased by 40 percent in the last ten years.

Annapolis Police might take two dozen illegal guns off the street tonight and a week from now more guns come in to take their place. We can solve the micro problem by removing guns and arresting offenders. But Annapolis is not immune to the larger problems experienced across our nation.

According to Trace, a nonprofit, nonpartisan news organization that tracks gun violence, Americans purchased nearly 60 million guns between 2020 and 2022. Yearly gun sales are running at roughly twice the level of 15 or 20 years ago. There are more guns in homes than ever before.

According to a recent report by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, 54 percent of guns used in crimes and recovered by law enforcement were originally purchased legally.

None of this takes away our responsibility to act locally and do the work required to keep our community safe. But real solutions will only be possible if we look at the full context. Our police department has a stellar track record of catching shooters and working the cases so that prosecutors can successfully try them in court. But we can't solve the more general issue because we aren't responsible for multi-state gun trafficking.

We may have solved the local problem by arresting a shooter, but we haven't solved the broader problem of an untenable rate of incarceration and the devastation that brings to families and communities - and the way that devastation feeds cycles of trauma, family breakdown and crime.

As Public Safety Chair, I have recently attended town hall and community listening sessions to better understand the drivers of violence in communities and find grassroots solutions.

We have visited Newtowne Drive, Robinwood, Clay Street/People's Park, Bywater, Eastport Terrace/Harbour House and held sessions at Asbury United Methodist Church and Eastport Library.

We will continue to learn from you at future community listening sessions and work to implement solutions that have been brought to us.

We know that preventing crime will take a multi-pronged and collaborative effort. We have asked for our state legislative partners to come to the table to help us with resources and funding.

The APD has worked hard under Chief Jackson to implement a true community policing model. This includes an outstanding re-entry program to help people develop knowledge and skills that can lead away from crime to employment and a better future.

The Annapolis Police Community Outreach office provides numerous programs to support children and teens including:

Chess club

Boxing

Shop with a cop

Food donation and delivery during the holidays

Camps including fishing, forensics, and sailing

Field trips to Historically Black Colleges and Universities in our area including Howard, Morgan State and Coppin State

Field trips to fun places like Washington Wizards games, or with the Office of Emergency Management, Patriot Point.

Our Office of Community Services employs a full-time clinical social worker and community support specialists who help families with everything from rental assistance, school and academic supports, connections to daycare services and job opportunities, access to health care, including mental health, behavioral health and emotional support services.

Within the Mayor's Office, we have two full time programs - one to help with substance use disorder, our NAM program, and one is a violence interruption program, No Harm. The No Harm team has also partnered with the County Health Department to bring Cure Violence to Annapolis. This is a violence interruption program that will be implemented in Eastport Terrace and Harbor House.

The Mayor and Schools Superintendent, Dr. Bedell, recently convened a roundtable discussion to advance public safety, mentorship and initiatives aimed at helping young people navigate our challenging times. This will be an ongoing dialogue because our youth are the future of our community.

We have spent the past two years collaborating with HACA and the community on Choice Neighborhoods to come up with a plan to redevelop Eastport Terrace and Harbour House into mixed income, mixed use neighborhoods with a specific aim toward integrating public safety into the design.

We have our MPDU program, which offers affordable housing opportunities when a new development is considered. We currently have units available right now at Parkside Preserve.

We offer community grants and distribute HUD's community development block grants.

We are working on local solutions to solve the multiple problems that all contribute to a climate of despair and hopelessness.

Where do we go from here? We need your help too. To use a maritime analogy, if you want to move the ship forward, we have all got to row in the same direction. We are looking for constructive solutions.

Nobody wants this violence in our community. We will continue our work to get ahead of it and we ask for your help to make all our communities safer.

I regret to report that two people with close ties to the City have passed away in the last week.

Sharon Cyrus was a longtime Executive Assistant in Annapolis. She served seven police chiefs and three mayors, a total of 45 years of public service to the residents of the City of Annapolis!

In addition, our longtime official Recreation and Parks photographer, Luke Thompson, passed away unexpectedly last week. If you've ever seen the Recreation and Parks catalog, or any of the photos of the cute kids at camp, you've seen Luke's work.

I'd like for us to first watch a quick video of some of Luke's work and then we will take a moment of silence to honor both Luke and Sharon, may their families take comfort in their memory.

This past weekend, we had a showcase of the number one reason why the City Dock project has become an urgent concern: flooding. Floodwaters lapped at the doors of downtown businesses during high tides in this storm event.

Tropical Storm Ophelia did NOT do much damage by way of winds or power outages, but there was a lot of flooding in low-lying areas.

Last Wednesday, we held a meeting with the City Dock Action Committee to review the most recent plans for future resiliency work at City Dock.

We continue work with our partners to make adjustments. We want to thank everyone for their input and energy as we move this project forward, especially members of the City Dock Action Committee, elected officials, Historic Annapolis, the United States Naval Academy and concerned residents and businesses. We value your input.

We want to specifically give a shout out to our state and federal partners who have pledged funding, specifically Senator Sarah Elfreth and Delegates Shaneka Henson and Dana Jones. Thank you to our state delegation for your work to help us bring in $15 million in state funding - so far!

The weekend flooding also had an impact on an annual festival that was unfortunately canceled due to the weather. I am pleased to report to you tonight that the Kunta Kinte Festival has been rescheduled for October 28 at the same location. Make your plans today to attend this amazing event.

Starting October 7, the City will launch the Eastport Electric Trolley. It will run on Saturdays and Sundays. It's free and you just flag it down along the route. This pilot will run until June 30 of next year when we will evaluate the results of the pilot. If you want to keep the trolley, please make sure you use it!

The Department of Planning and Zoning received a quarter of a million dollar grant for the Bay Ridge Bikeways path that will run from downtown to Quiet Waters along Bay Ridge Avenue. This is design grant and follows a very successful feasibility study - also grant funded - to make sure that the component pieces of the bikeway will be safe and accessible. We will continue our work to connect City bike paths and pedestrian greenways to align with the 2011 Bicycle Master Plan. This brings the total in bikeways grants to nearly $6 million!

We are in the middle of Hispanic Heritage Month, which runs from September 15 to October 15 each year. I'd like to draw your attention to a couple of events that highlight the contributions of our Hispanic and Latino friends and neighbors.

First is the Latino Art Gallery in City Hall. Take time to admire some of the work of talented artists in our community. It is open during regular business hours here at City Hall, 160 Duke of Gloucester.

On Main Street we have the flags of Hispanic countries and we will again have the Day of the Dead festival at Maryland Hall from 3 to 8 p.m. on Saturday, October 28.

On October 8, come out for Faith and Blue, an opportunity for police and clergy to come together to facilitate safer and stronger communities. This will be held from noon to 5 p.m. at People's Park. It's free and we hope to see you there!

A few final notes on dates:

Tomorrow and Saturday are the last nights of the season for Dinner Under the Stars.

On Thursday, we've got Green Drinks and an Electric Car showcase at Market House by Annapolis Green.

Annapolis Maritime Museum launches their fall concert series Thursday with a show at their Edgewood Road campus. Bring a blanket or beach chair for seating.

Lastly, coming up this weekend is the start of the Annapolis Symphony Orchestra's 62nd season with shows on both Friday and Saturday nights. Tickets are available online or at the Maryland Hall box office.

Now let's get on with our meeting.
