A. Update from the Mayor

Mayor Gavin Buckley
Remarks - City Council
June 28, 2021 - 7 p.m.
City Council Chambers

Good evening and welcome to a busy day here in Annapolis. This morning we dedicated the Guardians of the First Amendment Memorial at the corner of Compromise Street and Newman Street in downtown to mark three years since the Capital Gazette mass shooting.

At this morning's dedication, we had more than 300 people in attendance, including the survivors and the families of the victims as well as local dignitaries. Together we remembered Gerald Fischman, Rob Hiaasen, John McNamara, Rebecca Smith and Wendi Winters.

I want to thank Carl Snowden and Juanita Cage Lewis for all of their work coming up with the idea for the memorial and finding appropriate funding from donors, the state, the County and of course your City of Annapolis.

Two years ago, the architect came to Annapolis with ten plans for a memorial. We found a location. We donated the land. We donated $100,000. The Department of Public Works supervised and oversaw the project - during a pandemic no less.

For months, City staff prepared with weekly planning calls, setting forth the details for today's event. They planned the setup of the stage and chairs and tents, they figured out the road closures and police, fire and OEM staffing, created invitations and programs and banners, sent out media advisories and press releases, circulated information on social media, brought in the honor guard, brought in the cooling bus from Annapolis transit, provided cold water for everyone to drink and so much more.

I thank City staff for adding this to their daily duties and making it all look easy. I saw how much work and energy and love really went into it.

I want to thank authors David Simon and Laura Lippman for providing remarks and dedicating the memorial. It was a moving ceremony and is available on our City social media channels.

I hope that residents and visitors use the memorial site as a place to reflect on the importance of a free press.

I was away on vacation with my family last week and I want to thank Alderwoman Rhonda Pindell Charles of Ward 3 for stepping in as acting mayor.

I understand that you were plenty busy with ribbon cuttings and citation presentations and other mayoral duties, Alderwoman. Thank you for representing the City and her residents.

On Friday, we'll kick off our Independence Day weekend. We will have the tall ships arrival and the fire boat out in the harbor. I hope to see people lining City Dock, on the Eastport Bridge, in Eastport - coming out from all over to welcome these beautiful ships as they sail into Annapolis.

Then we'll have concerts and events at Maryland Hall and Chambers Park. On Saturday morning our parade will go off at 10:30 and we are looking forward to saluting our front line workers who have done so much for us this past year.

Look for your City Council members on the City of Annapolis float in this year's parade.

We'll have events and activities throughout the day on Saturday and Sunday, including neighborhood parades in Eastport and West Annapolis.

On Sunday night the City is putting on a fireworks display in the Annapolis harbor that will truly be a sign that we are back. I am looking forward to being in as many places as possible this weekend.

I thank all of our community partners: Visit Annapolis, Historic Annapolis, Art in Public Places, Greater Parole Community Association, Downtown Annapolis Partnership, National Park Service - Chesapeake, Annapolis Maritime Museum, Maryland Hall,

ArtFarm, Inner West Street Association and many many more for all their hard work to give residents and visitors a memorable experience this Fourth of July weekend!

For a complete calendar of events, use the keywords Independence Day at www.Annapolis.gov or visit the Annapolis visitor center on West Street to pick up a map and schedule of events.

Finally, we cut the ribbon on the new Truxtun Tennis and Pickleball Courts over the weekend, and I know that both groups were out enjoying the refurbished courts. I thank everyone who made that event a success and especially our Recreation and Parks staff and Department of Public Works staff as well as Director Michael Johnson for getting that one across the finish line. The courts look -- and play -- great!

Let's get on with tonight's meeting!
