

City of Annapolis

Proclamation

- WHEREAS Ellen Moyer made history as the first woman elected Mayor of Annapolis in 2001, breaking barriers and inspiring generations of leaders in our city; and
- WHEREAS Mayor Moyer’s tenure was marked by her commitment to environmental stewardship, including the creation of the Annapolis Conservancy Board and the Greenscape program, leaving a lasting legacy on the city’s parks, waterfront, and public spaces; and
- WHEREAS Prior to serving as mayor, Ellen Moyer served with distinction on the Annapolis City Council, the Maryland Racing Commission, and as executive director of the Maryland Commission for Women, advocating tirelessly for education, equity, and civic engagement; and
- WHEREAS Her dedication to public service is matched by her unflinching attention to detail, often expressed through spirited phone calls and emails to city staff, a testament to her passionate commitment to the betterment of Annapolis; and
- WHEREAS Beyond her professional achievements, Ellen Moyer has been a devoted mother and grandmother, instilling values of leadership, civic responsibility, and resilience in her children and grandchildren; and
- WHEREAS in recognition of her historic leadership, unwavering service, and the colorful, yet always devoted, spirit she has brought to the City of Annapolis, it is fitting to honor Ellen Moyer with a day dedicated in her name.
